Commercial Property Market Review

October 2024

Our monthly property market review is intended to provide background to recent developments in property markets as well as to give an indication of how some key issues could impact in the future.

We are not responsible or authorised to provide advice on investment decisions concerning property, only for the provision of mortgage advice. Commercial lending is available by referral to a master broker. We hope you will find this review to be of interest.

Commercial market update

UK commercial real estate continues to perform well, according to BNP Paribas Real Estate.

Investor sentiment has improved, with sterling continuing to strengthen, reaching its highest level against the dollar and the euro in over two years. This helps to attract overseas investors and boost UK weightings in global real estate allocations.

Performance is recovering too and total returns were positive across all main sectors over the last three months – the first time this has been the case in over two years. It is important to note, however, that this recovery is expected to be gradual as investors and the market continue to find their feet.

Etienne Prongué, CEO of BNP Paribas Real Estate commented, "UK real estate data continues to be reassuring. The trajectory for capital value is now positive across all property types and confirms the UK market is further along in its recovery than the rest of Europe. With the development pipeline remaining constrained and business surveys continuing to point to expansion, our forecast for prime office returns point to continuing UK outperformance over the next five years."

Modest recovery for retail

The latest data from Colliers indicates that the retail market is showing signs of modest recovery.

In capital markets, retail investment volumes increased to £200m in August. Although this is above the £150m reported in July, it is still significantly lower than the five-year monthly average for August, which stands at £660m. The largest single-asset transaction in August came from JP Morgan, who bought 291 Oxford Street for £70m at a 5.8% yield.

In occupier markets, retails sales volumes increased by 2.5% annually in August but are still below pre-pandemic levels. Meanwhile, annual retail price inflation was at 3.5% in August, having lowered to 2.9% in June. Also, retails rents have risen for 22 consecutive months.

> In capital markets, retail investment volumes increased to £200m in August

Positive sentiment from Savills

There seems to be a more positive sentiment in the UK commercial market, according to Savills.

All sectors saw yields trending downwards or staying the same in August. Investment research firm, MSCI, reported that total returns were positive across the whole UK commercial market. The only sector displaying a yearly negative return was offices, however Savills expect this sector to pick up and return to positive territory in Q1 2025. Future supply is very limited, which will cause prime rents to keep increasing.

The UK dominated European activity in H1 of this year, with a 29% share of investment volumes – 24% above the five-year average. There has been a notable increase in activity from French SCPI (Société Civile de Placement Immobilier) collective funds, who are investing in UK regional markets.

Commercial property currently for sale in the UK

- South West England has the highest number of commercial properties for sale

- Scotland currently has 1,324commercial properties for sale with an average asking price of  $\pounds 367,594$
- There are currently 1,844 commercial properties for sale in London, the average asking price is £1,326,434.

Source: Zoopla, data extracted 15 October 2024

| Region                   | No.properties | Avg. askingprice |
|--------------------------|-------------------|----------------------|
| London                   | 1,844             | £1,326,434           |
| South East England       | 1,681             | £688,248             |
| East Midlands            | 852               | £606,967             |
| East of England          | 1,027             | £608,191             |
| North East England       | 845               | £346,355             |
| North West England       | 1,535             | £558,791             |
| South West England       | 1,873             | £669,511             |
| West Midlands            | 1,167             | £562,943             |
| Yorkshire and The Humber | 1,215             | £364,902             |
| Isle of Man              | 35                | £581,514             |
| Scotland                 | 1,324             | £367,594             |
| Wales                    | 923               | £466,805             |
| Northern Ireland         | 2                 | £17,142              |

Very limited supply of Glasgow office space

Savills has reported that demand for office space is significantly exceeding supply in Glasgow.

In the first half of this year, take-up of office space across the city increased annually by 32%, reaching 177,514 sq. ft. There remains demand for up to 750,000 sq. ft of office space, but a limited supply of good quality offices exists, with only about 600,000 sq. ft of prime and Grade A office available. The take-up is therefore expected to stay below the long-term five-year average of 490,900 sq. ft.

Rents are expected to go up to at least £40 per sq. ft due to the lack of new build and refurbishment projects in the pipeline. Commenting on the challenging conditions, the Head of Savills' Glasgow office, David Cobban, said, "Ultimately, businesses will have to be prepared to pay more to get the type of space that fulfils their requirements."

All details are correct at the time of writing (16 October 2024)

It is important to take professional advice before making any decision relating to your personal finances. Information within this document is based on our current understanding and can be subject to change without notice and the accuracy and completeness of the information cannot be guaranteed. It does not provide individual tailored investment advice and is for guidance only. Some rules may vary in different parts of the UK.